A Few Famous Shots and How They Won Distinction.

A Treasury Position for "the Best Shot in the South"-Page Mc-Carty's Record - Riddleberger and the Wises.

Richmond Correspondence Philadelphia Times: There is a well-grounded rumor in circulation in this city that Captain Page McCarty, the most noted duelist in Virginia, is to be appointed chief of division in the treasury department in a few weeks. It this should be true, the Double corner Lowe's add 1,390

Captain Page McCarty has been for ten years the bright particular star of all believers in the "code." He is regarded, and justly, as the best shot in the south. His record fairly entitles him to the reputation. In the Confederate army he was the hero of his regiment on account of his wonderful marksmanship. Only one man could compare with him, and this was his most intimate friend, young Lieu-tenant Mordecai. These two officers fought throughout the war together, and were considered as friends of the Damon and Pythias order. Surrendering with Lee at Appointtox, they returned to Richmond, McCarty going into journalism and Mordecai into the tobacco business. Their friendship continued as warm as on the battlefield until both met and loved the same woman. Then they became such bitter enemies as only whilem friends can become.

The story of the duel between them has often been told. After n great deal of preliminary bitterness and recrimina-tion, Mordecai walked, into the West inoreland club rooms one night and slapped McCarty in the face. Next day hey stood before each other with pistols The aim of both was perfect, but Mor-FOR SALE—House 9 rooms, lot 5/8126, terms to suit, small each payment $20 per month, or will trade, a line bargain, at $4,000.

The woman for whom they fought is now a Richmond matron with six children. Another duel in which McCarty also brought down his man lifted him to the emmence which he now enjoys, and whether the eminence be good or had no one has attempted to deprive him of it

Another famous duelist of this city who on the road to political prom hence is Captain Beirne, editor of the Riehmond State. He will probally stand for con-gress this fall, and if he does he is sure of election, for there is not a more popular man in Virginia. Mr. Beirne has had more than his share of experience has had shots at Riddleberger, at the late Duff streen of Stafford county and at two control of the followers of Mahone. He was always come out unscathed, though hover inflict. ing serious injury on his opponent. Two years ago he challenged John S. Wise, late candidate for governor of Virginia. The latter accepted.

The date and place were fixed, but the police got wind of the affair and the duel was declared off for the time being. Soon after Beirne left Richmond in the direction of Washington. The same day Wise started south and all Virginia was thrown into excitement by the rumor that they were going to meet at Charlottesyille and had gone in opposite directions in order to allay the suspicions of the police. Every day for weeks thereafter special telegrams were printed in the State purporting to come from the scene of action and the circulation of the paper was nearly doubled. Enemies of Beirne began to hint that the whole thing was gotten up with a view of advertising his paper and that it was he who was sanding all those thrilling specials. | Wall'sSafes, Vaults, Timelocks sending all those thrilling specials. Whether this was the case or not Beirne and Wise turned up in Richmond one morning safe and sound and both ex-pressed surprise that there had been any talk about their fighting a duel.

Senator Riddleberger has had the unique experience of having engagements for two duess on the same day. At 8 o'clock one morning he met Beirne just outside of Richmond and after an ex-change of shots, in which neither was he crossed over into an adjoining field with his seconds to have a settle-ment of his quarrel with George D. Wisc. The elements interfered however, A heavy rain fell and after it cleared off the ammunition of the hostile forces was found to be so wet as to be untit for use. so, with a glare at each other they returned to Richmond by different routes The police prevented another er-counter. George D. Wise is now in congress. His reputation for marksmanship is second only to that of Page McCarty. The most remarkable thing about these Virginia duelists is their exceedingly gentle appearance. Take, for instance, McCarty. In appearance he is the typical theological student. His deep blue eyes are almost feminine in expression, while his manner is that of the most polished of the "F. F. V." Beirne resembles him in these respects, and the Wises are nearly the same. Riddleberger, it is true, looks a little warlike sometimes, but he does not seem like a fire-can the j any

The several stone records of early in the seventh century found lately at Pemaquid, Me., are not regarded as nov elties in Pemaquid. A correspondent of a Boston paper writes: "Last year a flat stone, a few yards from the northeast bastion outline of old Fort William Henry, was uncovered, cut into the face of which was the 'broad arrow' of royal English title, a symbol of government ownership, and 1620 inscribed below. Some of the ancient mast pines on the Damariscotta have been found marked with the same ancient symbol of royal ownership, on and the site of the ancient Sheepscott farms, the New Dartmouth of the old country of Cornwall, 1864, of the Pemaquid country, the broad arrow cut in the rock has also been found. Relies bearing the dates of 1606, 1610, 1620, have been unearthed at and about Pemaquid. and obviously related to civilized occupancy of past history.
